

Beckett's Kingdom

My kingship at a crossroads beckoned by my dreams

The East who smiled, leading nowhere;
the West said few may follow me.

and one a mountain road,
the other down a chasm

Should I rule in nothingness or be lead in nothing's bliss?

Thomas C. Miller